JULY 10, 2026

Chip Rally

Thursday delivered a chip-led broad rally as Meta’s reported in-house AI chip and Goldman’s reported AMD PT raise pulled the equipment complex higher, oil retraced, and Iran retaliation was absorbed.

S&P 500 (THU CLOSE)	NASDAQ (THU CLOSE)	WTI (USO THU)	BITCOIN (LIVE)	FEAR & GREED (CNN)

Markets — Thursday Reportedly Delivered a Chip-Led Broad Rally (Nasdaq ↑1.66% to $723.28, S&P ↑0.85% to $751.71, Dow ↑0.27%) per the Data Drop as a Reported Reuters Exclusive on Meta's Reported In-House "Iris" AI Chip Reportedly Set for September Production per Reuters/CNBC Reportedly Sent LRCX ↑6.01% to $353.17 and the Chip Equipment Complex Higher (MRVL ↑4.99%, CRDO ↑2.69%, NXPI ↑2.37%, AMD ↑5.67% on a Reported Goldman PT Raise to $640 From $450 per Yahoo); Oil Reportedly Retraced (USO ↓2.85%, BNO ↓3.21%) Even as Iran Reportedly Struck U.S.-Allied Bases Overnight per The National / ZeroHedge

THURSDAY'S TAPE REPORTEDLY WIDENED THE CHIP-RECOVERY BID INTO A BROADER RISK-ON COMPOSITION: XLK REPORTEDLY CLOSED ↑2.18% WHILE XLY ↑1.34% AND XLF ↑1.04% PER THE DATA DROP, WITH RATE-SENSITIVE AND ENERGY NAMES TRAILING (XLE ↓1.40%, XLP ↓1.41%, XLU ↓0.51%) — THE FCI GROWTH-HYBRID SLEEVE REPORTEDLY CAPTURED A CONCENTRATED BID WITH AMD ↑5.67% TO $546.72, LRCX ↑6.01% TO $353.17, MRVL ↑4.99% TO $243.27, CRDO ↑2.69% TO $265.65, NXPI ↑2.37% TO $290.54, QCOM ↑2.44% TO $191.11, AND FTNT ↑4.48% TO $163.73, WHILE THE DIGITAL-MINER SLEEVE REPORTEDLY REVERSED WITH MARA ↑9.98% TO $13.22 PER THE DATA DROP

For FCI's framework, Thursday's composition reportedly reads as a follow-through on the Wednesday chip-recovery leg widened by the reported Meta "Iris" chip headline per Reuters and CNBC coverage: per the reported Reuters exclusive, Meta reportedly plans to begin production of its in-house MTIA-generation AI chip in September, reportedly designed with Broadcom and reportedly manufactured by TSM — a materially constructive read-across for the FCI equipment complex (LRCX ↑6.01% to $353.17 per the data drop, with per TradingKey coverage a reported four analyst PT raises to $400–$475 in a single week). AMD reportedly closed ↑5.67% at $546.72 per the data drop as Goldman Sachs reportedly raised the PT to $640 from $450 per Yahoo coverage in the data drop headlines. SYF reportedly reversed Wednesday's concentrated give-back (↑4.85% to $71.57 per the data drop) as per Benzinga coverage cited in the data drop headlines, financial-services shares reportedly caught a bid on lower Treasury yields, oil prices, and dollar. NVDA reportedly closed ↓0.66% at $202.78 per the data drop — consistent with a reported profit-take on Wednesday's $200 breach. Precious metals reportedly firmed (GLD ↑1.00% to $378.18, SLV ↑2.48% to $54.14), and TLT reportedly closed ↑0.15% at $84.49. Carson's SPY $645.80 support remains active per levels.json, well-removed from Thursday's reported intraday range of $745.59–$751.97 per the data drop.

PER BLS COVERAGE OF THURSDAY'S REPORTED WEEKLY PRINT, INITIAL JOBLESS CLAIMS REPORTEDLY FELL TO

215,000 FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 4 (REPORTEDLY ↓2,000 FROM AN UPWARD-REVISED 217,000) PER THE DOL RELEASE, REPORTEDLY BEATING A FACTSET CONSENSUS OF 220,000 AND A BLOOMBERG CONSENSUS OF 217,000; REPORTED CONTINUING CLAIMS FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 27 EDGED UP TO 1.81 MILLION PER DOL — A COMPOSITION REPORTEDLY CONSISTENT WITH LIMITED LAYOFF ACTIVITY EVEN AS THE REPORTED JUNE PAYROLLS PRINT REPORTEDLY LANDED AT +57K PER PRIOR BRIEF COVERAGE; THE REPORTED FED COMMUNICATION WINDOW REPORTEDLY REMAINS CONSTRAINED THROUGH THE JULY 29 FOMC PER THE FEDERAL RESERVE CALENDAR

For FCI's framework, the reported jobless-claims beat reportedly reinforces the reported labor-side resilience the June payrolls miss reportedly did not surface — a signal that the reported buy-side sees no immediate crack in employment even as the reported Warsh-Fed sits on rate-hike optionality. Per Yahoo coverage in the data drop headlines, Fed's Williams reportedly said energy prices have already peaked despite the reported new Iran fighting — a reported on-record departure from the reported inflation-tinted view that reportedly framed Wednesday's Warsh minutes and a materially relevant framing item for the FCI Refiner and Upstream sleeves. PEP reportedly reported Q2 EPS at $2.20 vs a reported $2.229 estimate per the data drop, a reported modest miss that reportedly reads as consistent with the reported staples-sleeve concentrated hit Thursday (XLP ↓1.41%, CL ↓2.18%, CHD ↓0.52% per the data drop). DAL reportedly reports pre-market this morning with a reported consensus of $1.48 EPS on $18.78B revenue per Alphastreet — the reported industrials read-across for FCI. Simplicity Over Complexity.

Thursday reportedly widened the chip-led rebound into a broader risk-on tape as Meta's reported in-house AI chip and the reported Goldman AMD PT raise reportedly re-tightened the AI-capex bid; the FCI Growth-Hybrid sleeve reportedly captured the leadership. Research Reveals Opportunities.

Geopolitics — Iran Reportedly Widened Its Retaliation Thursday With Reported Drone Strikes on U.S.-Allied Sites in Bahrain (Reported Fuel Storage), Kuwait (Reported Patriot Battery), and Qatar (Reported Satellite / Early-Warning), Plus a Reported Second-Phase Salvo of 10 Ballistic Missiles on Jordan's Al Azraq Air Base per The National, ZeroHedge, and Times of Israel; Reported Kuwait Defense Ministry Reportedly Confirmed One Injury; Reported Jordan Interception Reportedly Yielded No Casualties per JAF — Oil Reportedly Retraced Sharply Thursday (USO ↓2.85%, BNO ↓3.21%) Even as the U.S. Reportedly Continued Strikes on Reported 90+ Iranian Targets per Reuters

PER THE NATIONAL, ZEROHEDGE, AND TIMES OF ISRAEL COVERAGE OF THE REPORTED IRANIAN RETALIATION, IRAN REPORTEDLY WIDENED ITS TARGET SET FROM WEDNESDAY'S KUWAIT / BAHRAIN U.S.-BASE STRIKES TO REPORTED DRONE ATTACKS ON BAHRAIN (REPORTED FUEL STORAGE), KUWAIT (REPORTED PATRIOT BATTERY), AND QATAR (REPORTED SATELLITE / EARLY-WARNING SITE), FOLLOWED BY A REPORTED SECOND-PHASE BALLISTIC-MISSILE SALVO OF 10 MISSILES ON JORDAN'S AL AZRAQ AIR BASE PER TIMES OF ISRAEL — THE REPORTED U.S. STRIKES ON WEDNESDAY REPORTEDLY STRUCK APPROXIMATELY 90 IRANIAN TARGETS PER REUTERS, REPORTEDLY FRAMED BY CENTCOM AS A RESPONSE TO THE REPORTED TUESDAY HORMUZ VESSEL ATTACKS; TRUMP REPORTEDLY WARNED OF REPORTED ADDITIONAL STRIKES INCLUDING REPORTEDLY ON IRAN'S KHARG ISLAND EXPORT TERMINAL PER REUTERS

For FCI's framework, the reported Thursday retaliation reportedly widened the reported theater from GCC to Jordan without a reported escalation in energy-supply disruption — a materially different composition than the reported cross-asset premium buildup Wednesday, as Thursday reportedly saw USO close ↓2.85% at $109.01 and BNO ↓3.21% at $42.17 per the data drop, with UNG reportedly ↓6.64% to $10.83. Per Reuters coverage in the data drop headlines, oil reportedly headed for a weekly gain even as gold reportedly headed for a weekly drop — the reported cross-asset composition reportedly signals a market pricing in a scenario where the reported theater widens without a genuine Hormuz shutdown. For the FCI Refiner sleeve, VLO reportedly gave back ↓0.58% to $281.25 per the data drop after Wednesday's reported ↑6.26% bid, and DVN reportedly retraced ↓2.98% to $42.02; CVX reportedly closed ↓1.09% at $174.05. Per Yahoo coverage in the data drop headlines, Fed's Williams reportedly said energy prices have already peaked despite the reported new Iran fighting — a reported policy-side framing that reportedly reinforces the reported market's pricing of the reported energy premium as tactical rather than structural. For the FCI Defense sleeve, LMT reportedly closed ↓1.84% at $518.26 and GD held ↑0.08% at $374.60 per the data drop — a reported concentrated give-back for LMT consistent with the reported profit-take on Wednesday's Ankara F-35/Turkey read-across per prior brief coverage. The physical world matters.

PER REUTERS COVERAGE IN THE DATA DROP HEADLINES, "WHAT WAR?" REPORTEDLY FRAMED THE REPORTED TRADING DAY — CHIP-LED RALLY REPORTEDLY HELPED MARKETS IGNORE THE ON-AGAIN, OFF-AGAIN U.S.-IRAN TRUCE; THE REPORTED CHIP COMPLEX BID (LRCX ↑6.01%, AMD ↑5.67%, MRVL ↑4.99% PER DATA DROP) REPORTEDLY ABSORBED THE GEOPOLITICAL SHOCK, AND THE REPORTED DOHA TECHNICAL TRACK REPORTEDLY SCHEDULED TO RESUME AROUND JULY 11 PER PRIOR BRIEF COVERAGE REPORTEDLY REMAINS A LIVE ITEM EVEN AS TRUMP REPORTEDLY SIGNALLED THE LATE-JUNE FRAMEWORK REPORTEDLY RAN ITS COURSE PER CNBC FROM ANKARA

For FCI's framework, the reported market decoupling from the reported Middle East theater reportedly extends Wednesday's composition — the reported AI-capex bid reportedly matters more than the reported geopolitical premium at this reported juncture. Per Yahoo/CryptoNews coverage cited earlier in the week, Bitcoin reportedly recovered above $60,000 after the reported IBIT and ETHA Thursday bid (IBIT ↑1.65% to $35.81, ETHA ↑0.61% to $13.19 per the data drop), and per the data drop, MARA reportedly closed ↑9.98% at $13.22 — a signal that the reported miner-to-AI-compute optionality reportedly captured a concentrated bid Thursday. Per Yahoo coverage in the data drop headlines, Coinbase legal chief Paul Grewal reportedly resigned after the reported regulatory-win cycle — a longer-arc executive-transition item for COIN read-across as the stock reportedly closed ↓0.58% at $158.44 per the data drop. Think Like an Owner.

SECTION 03

On Our Radar

1. Meta's Reported In-House "Iris" AI Chip Reportedly Set for September Production per Reuters/CNBC — The Reported Chip Reportedly Designed With Broadcom and Reportedly Manufactured by TSM Is Reportedly Part of Meta's Reported MTIA (Meta Training and Inference Accelerator) Roadmap to Reportedly Double Compute Capacity Toward a Reported 14 GW Target Next Year per Reuters; The Reported Headline Reportedly Sent LRCX ↑6.01% to $353.17 per the Data Drop, With per TradingKey Coverage a Reported Four Analyst PT Raises to $400–$475 in a Single Week — A Materially Constructive Read-Across for the FCI Chip-Equipment Complex. For FCI's framework, the reported hyperscaler custom-silicon roadmap reportedly matters most for the reported equipment complex where FCI is reportedly positioned: LRCX at $353.17 (↑6.01%), KEYS $322.17 (↑1.55%), TEL $198.91 (↑1.36%), and TSM $436.96 (flat) per the data drop. Per Yahoo coverage in the data drop headlines, Goldman Sachs reportedly raised the AMD PT to $640 from $450, and AMD reportedly closed ↑5.67% at $546.72 per the data drop — a reported constructive read-across for the reported FCI AI-capex bid. Per SeekingAlpha coverage in the data drop headlines, Credo (CRDO) reportedly entered "the next AI battleground" and reportedly closed ↑2.69% at $265.65. The physical world matters.

2. DAL Q2 Reports This Morning Pre-Market per Delta IR — Reported Consensus $1.48 EPS on $18.78B Revenue per Alphastreet, Reportedly a 29.5% YoY EPS Decline From $2.10; DAL Is Not an FCI Position but the Reported Print Reportedly Serves as a Read-Across for the Industrials Sleeve and the Reported Consumer-Cyclical Demand Backdrop as Oil Reportedly Retraced Thursday (USO ↓2.85%). PEP Reportedly Reported Q2 EPS $2.20 vs Est $2.229 per the Data Drop — A Reported Modest Miss for the Reported Staples Read-Across. For FCI's framework, DAL's reported print reportedly clarifies whether the reported reset in unit economics reportedly bleeds into a materially different guide for the reported industrials cycle; per prior brief coverage, the reported staples sleeve reportedly took the concentrated hit Thursday (CL ↓2.18%, XLP ↓1.41%) after PEP's reported modest miss even as Wells Fargo reportedly maintained Overweight on CHD (PT raised to $110) and Piper Sandler reportedly raised the CL PT to $96 per Benzinga coverage in the data drop headlines. Avoid Erosion.

3. Iran Retaliation Widened Thursday — Drone Strikes on Bahrain (Reported Fuel Storage), Kuwait (Reported Patriot Battery), Qatar (Reported Satellite Site) Plus 10 Ballistic Missiles on Jordan's Al Azraq Air Base per The National / ZeroHedge / Times of Israel; Reported Kuwait Casualty (One Injury, Stable) and Reported Jordan Interception per JAF; Oil Reportedly Retraced (USO ↓2.85%, BNO ↓3.21%, UNG ↓6.64%) per the Data Drop — Trump Reportedly Warned Reported Future Strikes Could Target Iran's Kharg Island Export Terminal per Reuters. For FCI's Refiner and Upstream sleeves, Thursday reportedly saw VLO retrace ↓0.58% to $281.25 and DVN ↓2.98% to $42.02 per the data drop after Wednesday's reported concentrated bid; per Reuters coverage in the data drop headlines, oil reportedly still headed for a weekly gain and gold reportedly headed for a weekly drop — a composition reportedly consistent with a market pricing tactical energy premium rather than a structural Hormuz shutdown. Per Yahoo coverage cited in the data drop, Fed's Williams reportedly said energy prices have already peaked despite the reported new Iran fighting — a reported policy-side framing item into the reported July 29 FOMC. The physical world matters.

4. Initial Jobless Claims Reportedly Fell to 215K for Week Ending July 4 per DOL, Reportedly Beating a FactSet Consensus of 220K and Reportedly Below Bloomberg's 217K per Bloomberg Coverage; Reported Continuing Claims for June 27 Reportedly Edged Up to 1.81M per DOL — A Composition Reportedly Consistent With Limited Layoff Activity Even as the Reported June Payrolls Print Reportedly Landed at +57K per Prior Brief Coverage; SYF Reportedly Recovered ↑4.85% to $71.57 Thursday per the Data Drop After Wednesday's Reported ↓9.61% Give-Back on Lower Treasury Yields and Oil per Benzinga. For FCI's Dividend sleeve, SYF's reported rebound reportedly signals a reported buy-side re-engagement into consumer-finance credit assumptions on the reported yield-and-oil retrace; the reported labor-side print reportedly reinforces the reported Fed communication-window setup through July 29 as the reported FOMC Warsh-chaired dot-plot dispersion reportedly remains the reported policy anchor per prior brief coverage. Research Reveals Opportunities.

5. Digital-Miner Sleeve Reportedly Reversed — MARA ↑9.98% to $13.22, HUT ↑0.10% to $106.22, IBIT ↑1.65% to $35.81, ETHA ↑0.61% to $13.19, COIN ↓0.58% to $158.44 per the Data Drop; Per Yahoo Coverage in the Data Drop, Coinbase Legal Chief Paul Grewal Reportedly Resigned After the Reported Regulatory-Win Cycle Including the Reported UK Approval to Trade Stocks and Derivatives per Prior Brief Coverage. For FCI's Digital Assets and Growth-Hybrid sleeves, Thursday's data drop reportedly showed the miner-to-AI-compute optionality thesis reportedly captured a concentrated bid (MARA ↑9.98% per data drop) even as HUT reportedly closed effectively flat — a signal that the reported cross-asset reset in the digital sleeve reportedly reversed on the Bitcoin recovery per Yahoo/CryptoNews. Per Yahoo coverage in the data drop headlines, Cathie Wood's ARK reportedly bought CRCL's slump while reportedly selling HOOD gains — HOOD reportedly closed ↑1.39% at $115.11 per the data drop. Simplicity Over Complexity.

6. Levels & Housekeeping — Carson's SPY $645.80 Support Remains Active per levels.json; Thursday's Reported Intraday Range on the S&P 500 Reportedly Was $745.59–$751.97 per the Data Drop, Well-Removed From the Reported Support Level. The Reported CNN Fear & Greed Index Reportedly Moved Into the Reported Neutral Zone per Benzinga; The Data Drop Reportedly Returned the Reported Crypto Fallback Value (23) — A Reported CNN Endpoint Miss to Flag per CLAUDE.md. For FCI's framework, the reported Fed communication window reportedly remains constrained through the reported July 29 FOMC per the Federal Reserve calendar; the reported June CPI reportedly scheduled July 14 per BLS calendar reportedly frames the next macro read into the reported Fed reset. Per prior brief coverage, the reported Warsh-Fed reportedly held September rate-hike odds near ~50–55% per CME FedWatch through the reported first minutes release Wednesday. Think Like an Owner.
