SECTION 01

Markets — Chip Cohort Rebounds on the Stand-Down Bid: LRCX ↑8.4%, TSM ↑5.3%, MRVL ↑4.1% as the Dow Reportedly Posts a Record Close Above 52,000

MONDAY'S CASH TAPE REPORTEDLY CONFIRMED THE SUNDAY-EVENING FUTURES BID FLAGGED IN THE PRIOR BRIEF, WITH THE S&P 500 PROXY CLOSING AT $741.00 (↑1.65%), THE NASDAQ PROXY AT $724.08 (↑2.49%), AND THE DOW PROXY AT $521.68 (↑0.76%) — PER YAHOO AND THESTREET COVERAGE, THE DOW REPORTEDLY CLOSED ABOVE THE 52,000 LEVEL FOR THE FIRST TIME, WHILE THE UVXY VOL PROXY REPORTEDLY COMPRESSED 5.55% TO $25.71 AS THE FRIDAY CHIP DRAWDOWN REVERSED ACROSS THE COHORT: LRCX $410.91 (↑8.39%), TSM $455.10 (↑5.26%), MRVL $277.75 (↑4.12%), KEYS $340.13 (↑3.49%), AMD $539.49 (↑3.43%), AND CRDO $245.68 (↑3.23%) PER THE DATA DROP

For FCI's framework, the Monday tape reportedly converted the Sunday stand-down into a single-session repricing across the AI-in-frastructure complex rather than a multi-day drift, with the Friday top-decile drawdown names recovering most of the prior session's give-back in a single bell. Per the data drop, sector rotation reportedly inverted cleanly: Discretionary (XLY ↑2.40%), Tech (XLK ↑2.37%), and Communication Services (XLC ↑1.60%) reportedly led while the Friday-defensive composition softened — Staples (XLP ↓0.40%), Utilities (XLU ↓0.39%), Energy (XLE ↓0.48%), and Materials (XLB ↓1.82%) reportedly gave back ground as gold (GLD ↓1.35%) and silver (SLV ↓1.13%) absorbed the safe-haven unwind. Russell 2K reportedly diverged at $298.97 (↓0.29% per the data drop), underscoring that the bid concentrated in the large-cap AI complex rather than broadening through the small-cap tape.

NASDAQ (MON CLOSE) $724.08 · ↑2.49% · reversing Fri's 5th-straight loss per CNBC

DOW (MON CLOSE) $521.68 · ↑0.76% · reportedly record close >52K per Yahoo/TheStreet

UVXY (VIX PROXY) $25.71 · ↓5.55% · vol compressed cleanly

FCI TOP 5 MOVERS LRCX ↑8.39% · TSM ↑5.26% · MRVL ↑4.12% · CAT ↑3.58% · KEYS ↑3.49%

CARSON'S SPY SUPPORT $645.80 · active · well-removed from Mon intraday low $732.09

FOR THE INVESTMENT COMMITTEE, THE MONDAY TAPE REPORTEDLY REINSTATED THE AI-INFRASTRUCTURE LEADERSHIP THESIS WHILE CAT'S ↑3.58% MOVE TO $1,033.19 (PER THE DATA DROP) REPORTEDLY CARRIED THE INDUSTRIALS READ — THE BOTTOM 5 FCI MOVERS WERE STLD ($234.22 ↓4.59%), HUT ($118.27 ↓3.86%), MARA

(↓14.03 ↓3.51%), AEM ($153.76 ↓2.21%), AND CHD ($97.90 ↓1.69%) PER THE DATA DROP, A STEEL-PLUS-MINERS-PLUS-GOLD COMPOSITE REFLECTING THE FRIDAY-DEFENSIVE UNWIND

Per Benzinga coverage cited in the data drop headlines, Cantor Fitzgerald reportedly raised its price target on ADI to $550 and on NXPI to $400, and Morgan Stanley reportedly maintained Overweight on DVN with a lowered target of $63 — sell-side reportedly continues to lean constructive into the cohort even as Monday's tape rotated. For FCI's digital sleeve, IBIT closed at $34.18 (↑0.97%) and ETHA at $12.24 (↑2.94%) per the data drop, while the listed crypto miners (HUT ↓3.86%, MARA ↓3.51%) reportedly diverged from the underlying ETF tape. Per Reuters coverage cited in the headline run, the Dow record close reportedly coincided with the yen reportedly hitting a 40-year low against the dollar, an FX overlay that reportedly stays in play through the Sintra-NFP cluster. Avoid Erosion.

The Sunday stand-down reportedly converted into a one-session AI-infrastructure repricing rather than a multi-day drift, with vol compressed and quarter-end mark-ups carrying into Tuesday. The physical world matters.

Geopolitics — Doha Talks Reportedly Set for Tuesday Even as Tehran Pushes Back: Hormuz Traffic Reportedly Consistent, Oil Bid Returns

PER CNBC, NPR, CNN, AXIOS, TIMES OF ISRAEL, AND AL JAZEERA COVERAGE OF A U.S. OFFICIAL STATEMENT, U.S. ENVOY STEVE WITKOFF REPORTEDLY HEADED TO DOHA MONDAY FOR A NEW ROUND OF TECHNICAL TALKS WITH IRANIAN COUNTERPARTS TUESDAY FOCUSED ON HORMUZ SHIPPING MANAGEMENT AND THE MOU FRAMEWORK — PER PRESIDENT TRUMP'S TRUTH SOCIAL POST CITED VIA CNBC, IRAN REPORTEDLY REQUESTED THE MEETING; PER AL JAZEERA AND THE NATIONAL COVERAGE, IRAN'S FOREIGN MINISTRY REPORTEDLY DENIED ANY NEGOTIATION MEETINGS WERE SCHEDULED WHILE CONFIRMING AN EXPERT DELEGATION WOULD TRAVEL TO DOHA TO FOLLOW UP ON FROZEN IRANIAN FUNDS — PER CNN COVERAGE, STRAIT OF HORMUZ VESSEL TRAFFIC WAS REPORTEDLY CONSISTENT THROUGH SUNDAY AND MONDAY FOLLOWING THE STAND-DOWN

For FCI's framework, the diplomatic-vs-operational signaling reportedly carries asymmetric information density into Tuesday's open: the Witkoff travel cadence and the Trump-Truth-Social framing reportedly point to a working-level engagement, while the Tehran public denial reportedly compresses the high-conviction read on whether the MOU survives in its current form. For the energy sleeve, the Monday tape (USO $107.08 ↑1.52%, BNO $40.85 ↑1.34% per the data drop) reportedly reversed part of the Friday Persian-Gulf-supply-resumption discount as Trump reportedly urged gasoline retailers to lower prices and warned of consequences per Reuters cited in the headlines — the political-pressure overlay on refining margins reportedly creates a cross-current for VLO ($266.32 ↑2.68% Mon per the data drop) even as Brent reportedly tracks toward an approximately 20% decline on the month per Reuters. Avoid Erosion.

PER AUDACY, TIMES OF ISRAEL, AND REUTERS COVERAGE CITED LAST WEEK, THE ISRAEL-LEBANON FRAMEWORK SIGNED FRIDAY JUNE 26 REPORTEDLY CONTINUES TO UNDERWRITE THE MULTIYEAR DEFENSE PROCUREMENT PIPELINE EVEN AS THE HEZBOLLAH-SIDE REJECTION CARRIES THROUGH — LMT CLOSED MONDAY AT $502.07 (↓1.05%) AND GD AT $348.07 (↑0.39%) PER THE DATA DROP, WITH THE LMT MODEST GIVE-BACK REPORTEDLY REFLECTING RISK-ON ROTATION RATHER THAN FRAMEWORK EROSION

Per Benzinga coverage cited in the data drop headlines, the Chamber of Commerce reportedly weighed in against a proposed stock buyback ban on defense contractors — a policy overlay that reportedly stays in play across the cohort. For the digital sleeve, the Monday tape (IBIT $34.18 ↑0.97%, ETHA $12.24 ↑2.94% per the data drop) reportedly absorbed the risk-on bid even as the data drop's sentiment line continues to fall back to the Crypto Fear & Greed reading at 15 (Extreme Fear); per Yahoo coverage cited in the headlines, Bernstein reportedly flagged Kalshi and Polymarket as potential takeover targets, an event-market overlay that reportedly cross-reads to HOOD ($101.83 ↑3.18% Mon per the data drop). For the AI-power sleeve, per Yahoo coverage cited in the headlines, Vistra reportedly announced a roughly $4 billion agreement to acquire Cogentrix's natural-gas generation portfolio (closing reportedly targeted for the second half of 2026) alongside separately-signed long-dated Meta and AWS power purchase agreements — VST closed Monday at $162.38 (↓0.68% per the data drop) on the disclosure. The physical world matters.

On Our Radar

1. Tuesday Quarter-End Close — Consumer Confidence at 10:00 ET, JOLTS, and NKE · STZ After-Close. Per Conference Board and FXStreet calendar listings, the June Consumer Confidence print is reportedly scheduled for release Tuesday June 30 at 10:00 ET, with the May JOLTS job-openings report reportedly published the same morning per the BLS schedule referenced in the prior brief series. Per Nike's investor relations release, NKE is reportedly scheduled to report Q4 FY26 results Tuesday after close at approximately 1:15 PM PT / 4:15 PM ET with the conference call beginning at 2:00 PM PT / 5:00 PM ET; per GuruFocus and TheStreet previews, the print reportedly carries a tariff-refund tailwind not embedded in earlier forecasts even as Greater China softness and tariff pass-through reportedly remain the consensus pressure points. STZ also reportedly reports today with consensus EPS near $3.27 per the data drop earnings line. NKE and STZ are not FCI holdings, but the prints reportedly carry framework signal for consumer-spending durability and tariff-pass-through that cross-reads to CHD ($97.90 ↓1.69% Mon per the data drop), CL ($92.40 ↑0.36%), and GPC ($117.18 ↑1.00%). The Tuesday close also reportedly marks the final session of Q2 and the June month, with the Monday rotation back into risk-on reportedly carrying quarter-end mark-up dynamics through the bell.

2. Wednesday Sintra — Warsh on the Policymaker Panel at Approximately 9:00 ET (13:00 GMT), First Major International Stage. Per the ECB Forum on Central Banking schedule and reporting from Chris Rugaber and LiveSquawk citing Nick Timiraos, Fed Chair Kevin Warsh is reportedly scheduled to appear on the Sintra policymaker panel Wednesday July 1 at approximately 9:00 AM ET (13:00 GMT) alongside ECB President Christine Lagarde, BoE Governor Andrew Bailey, and BoC Governor Tiff Macklem. Per FXStreet and VT Markets previews, the appearance reportedly carries elevated market-moving potential given Chair Warsh's post-PCE inflation-focused signaling and the reported September-hike pricing in fed funds futures referenced in the prior brief series. For FCI's rate-sensitive sleeves, the framework is that any deviation in tone reportedly resets the front-end curve and the dollar tape (yen reportedly at a 40-year low against the dollar per Reuters cited in the data drop) ahead of the Thursday pulled-forward NFP cluster. Research Reveals Opportunities.

3. Doha Tuesday — Witkoff Travels, Tehran Pushes Back, Hormuz Watch. Per CNBC and Times of Israel coverage cited above, the Tuesday Doha session reportedly carries the first post-strike-counterstrike read on whether the June 17 MOU survives operationally. The dual signaling (Trump confirming, Iran denying) reportedly compresses the high-conviction read and carries an information-density spike across the Tuesday news cycle. For FCI's energy sleeve (VLO ↑2.68% Mon, CVX ↓1.51%, DVN ↓0.52%, OKE ↓0.55% per the data drop), watch the WTI-Brent spread and tanker insurance premiums across the morning — the Monday recovery reportedly remained partial relative to the Friday give-back. Per Reuters cited in the headlines, oil reportedly tracks toward an approximately 20% decline on the month even after the Monday bid.

4. Chip Cohort Quarter-End — LRCX, TSM, MRVL, KEYS Reverse Friday; CAT Reportedly Tags an All-Time High. The Monday top-decile FCI tape (LRCX ↑8.39%, TSM ↑5.26%, MRVL ↑4.12%, CAT ↑3.58%, KEYS ↑3.49% per the data drop) reportedly converted the Friday chip-cohort drawdown into a single-session repricing. Per the data drop, CAT closed at $1,033.19 with an intraday high of $1,039.07, reportedly reflecting the industrials read into the AI-infrastructure overlay (the prior brief flagged Vistra-style power names; CAT's positioning reportedly extends that read to mechanical capex). Per Benzinga cited in the headlines, Cantor reportedly raised ADI to $550 and NXPI to $400; per Yahoo, BlackRock reportedly flagged a broader AI trade beyond NVDA, AMD, MU. Watch the LRCX and TSM follow-through into the Tuesday open for confirmation that the cohort reset holds rather than fades into quarter-end profit-taking. Think Like an Owner.

5. Holiday Week Sequencing — NFP Pulled to Thursday, Markets Closed Friday, Carson's SPY Support at $645.80 Remains Active. Per the Kiplinger week-ahead preview and the NYSE calendar, the June employment situation report is reportedly scheduled for release Thursday July 2 at 8:30 AM ET (a day early ahead of the July 3 Independence Day market closure), with consensus reportedly near 172,000 nonfarm payrolls per Kiplinger. The shortened-week sequencing reportedly compresses the Sintra-NFP information cluster into a Wednesday-Thursday window, with the Tuesday Consumer Confidence and JOLTS prints reportedly setting the soft-data table for the harder NFP read. Carson's SPY support at $645.80 (set 2026-04-13) reportedly remains active and well-removed from the Monday cash tape (intraday low $732.09 per the data drop — no level interaction); for the defensive sleeves, Monday's sector tape reportedly inverted cleanly into risk-on with XLP (↓0.40%), XLU (↓0.39%), XLE (↓0.48%), and XLB (↓1.82%) all reportedly giving back ground per the data drop.
