SECTION 01

Markets — Reported Thursday Rebound Reportedly Led by Energy (XLE ↑1.95%) and Tech (XLK ↑1.05%) as Reported Chip Sleeve Reportedly Surges on Reported AI-Infrastructure Signal; Reported 10-Year Yield Reportedly Retreats From an Intraday Multi-Decade High per CNBC Coverage Into This Morning's Reported 8:30 AM September Payrolls Release

REPORTED SPY REPORTEDLY CLOSES THURSDAY AT $763.99 (↑0.18%) WITH REPORTED QQQ AT $742.03 (↑0.31%) AND REPORTED RUSSELL 2K AT $279.02 (↑0.41%); REPORTED ENERGY (XLE ↑1.95%), REPORTED TECH (XLK ↑1.05%), AND REPORTED INDUSTRIALS (XLI ↑0.99%) REPORTEDLY LEAD THE TAPE INTO THIS MORNING'S REPORTED 8:30 AM SEPTEMBER EMPLOYMENT SITUATION RELEASE

Per data drop, SPY reportedly closed Thursday at $763.99 (↑0.18%), DIA at $508.62 (near-flat), QQQ at $742.03 (↑0.31%), and the reported Russell 2000 at $279.02 (↑0.41%) — a reported broad-breadth rebound sitting against Wednesday's reported post-PCE breadth deterioration (per Wednesday's brief data box with reported XLP ↓1.53%, XLV ↓1.35%, XLI ↓1.27%, and XLF ↓1.13%). Per data drop, the reported sector tape reportedly reads Energy (XLE) ↑1.95% at $62.70, Tech (XLK) ↑1.05% at $197.81, Industrials (XLI) ↑0.99% at $168.64, Utilities (XLU) ↑0.61% at $39.68, and Financials (XLF) ↑0.11% at $53.46, while Healthcare (XLV) reportedly lagged at ↓1.32% to $166.20 and Communication Services (XLC) reportedly closed ↓0.93% at $109.94. Per CNBC coverage of the reported Thursday Treasury curve, the reported 10-year yield reportedly reached an intraday high of approximately 5.344% (reportedly the highest level back to 2002) before reportedly retreating approximately 5 basis points by the close, and per data drop, TLT reportedly closed at $77.71 (near-flat at ↓0.09%). Per Newsquawk and Bloomberg previews, the reported September Employment Situation is reportedly scheduled this morning at 8:30 AM ET with reported consensus near 84,000 nonfarm payrolls (reportedly Bank of America at a reported 60,000 and reported Bloomberg median at a reported 90,000) and the reported unemployment rate reportedly held near 4.1%. Per data drop, Carson's active SPY support level at $645.80 (retracement target set April 13) remains untouched — Thursday's reported intraday low of $758.79 sits well above that level.

REPORTED FCI CHIP-AND-INTERCONNECT SLEEVE REPORTEDLY SURGES THURSDAY — CRDO REPORTEDLY ↑7.90% TO $210.17, LRCX REPORTEDLY ↑3.53% TO $340.10, TEL REPORTEDLY ↑3.16% TO $217.76, KEYS REPORTEDLY ↑2.70% TO $373.88, AND NOW REPORTEDLY ↑2.80% TO $137.76 PER DATA DROP; REPORTED ACCENTURE (ACN) REPORTEDLY ↑APPROXIMATELY 18% ON REPORTED FISCAL Q4 BEAT PER BBN TIMES COVERAGE

Per data drop, the reported top-5 FCI movers Thursday reportedly read Credo Technology (CRDO) ↑7.90% at $210.17, Lam Research (LRCX) ↑3.53% at $340.10, TE Connectivity (TEL) ↑3.16% at $217.76, ServiceNow (NOW) ↑2.80% at $137.76, and Keysight Technologies (KEYS) ↑2.70% at $373.88 — a reported semi-cap-plus-interconnect-plus-enterprise-software leadership read reportedly reading through the reported AI-infrastructure signal. Per Yahoo Finance and TradingKey coverage of the reported CRDO tape, reported Credo shares reportedly climbed on a reported combination of reported AI demand, reported optical digital-signal-processor hyperscaler adoption, and reported active-electrical-cable momentum, with reported annual revenue reportedly reaching approximately $1.34 billion and reported net profit reportedly approximately $472 million. Per BBN Times and Benzinga coverage of the reported Accenture (ACN) release, reported ACN shares reportedly surged approximately 18% on reported fiscal Q4 revenue of approximately $18.7 billion (reportedly above the reported $17.8-$18.4 billion company guide and reported approximately $18.3 billion FactSet consensus), reported adjusted EPS of approximately $3.29 (reportedly above the reported approximately $3.21 estimate carried in the data drop earnings section), and reported fiscal 2027 revenue growth guided to approximately 3-6% versus a reported approximately 3.9% analyst average. Per data drop, additional reported chip sleeve components reportedly closed Thursday with MRVL ↑1.46% at $268.08, NVDA ↑1.09% at $230.86, NXPI ↑0.70% at $239.19, TSM ↑0.66% at $459.20, AMD ↑0.65% at $615.73, and QCOM reportedly diverged lower at ↓1.06% to $182.09. Per data drop, the reported FCI utilities-and-AI-power sleeve reportedly also participated with CEG ↑1.93% at $258.92, VST ↑1.01% at $139.75, and NEE ↑0.81% at $76.35 as EIX reportedly closed near-flat at ↑0.13% to $53.80. For FCI positioning, the composition — a reported Thursday risk-on reversal reportedly reading through the reported AI-infrastructure signal, a reported ACN print reportedly reaffirming the reported enterprise-digital-services demand layer, and a reported chip-sleeve breadth reportedly reading through the reported semiconductor-supply-chain layer — keeps NVDA, AMD, TSM, MRVL, LRCX, KEYS, CRDO, TEL, ADI, NXPI, QCOM, NOW, and the reported FCI physical-AI-infrastructure sleeve reading through the reported Friday setup.

A reported Thursday risk-on reversal reportedly reading through the reported chip-and-interconnect leadership sitting against a reported crude bid and this morning's reported 8:30 AM September payrolls release frames a Friday setup where discipline over impulse tends to serve better than compositing a single directional view into the reported Fed-path signal. Simplicity over complexity.

Geopolitics — Reported New US Sanctions Reportedly Target Iran's Auto and Rail Sectors as Reported Shipping-Lane Blockade Reportedly Persists per Reuters; Reported WTI (USO) Reportedly ↑2.99% to $150.02 and Reported Brent (BNO) Reportedly ↑4.76% to $62.95; Reported Trump Reportedly Signals Possible Post-Midterm Strike Escalation per Time Interview Carried in Data Drop

REPORTED US TREASURY OFAC REPORTEDLY EXPANDS SANCTIONS PERIMETER TO REPORTED IRANIAN AUTO AND RAIL SECTORS AS REPORTED HORMUZ BLOCKADE REPORTEDLY CHOKES SHIP LANES PER REUTERS; REPORTED TRUMP REPORTEDLY TELLS TIME HE MAY INCREASE REPORTED IRAN STRIKES AFTER MIDTERMS ABSENT A DEAL PER BENZINGA COVERAGE CARRIED IN DATA DROP; REPORTED PHYSICAL-CRUDE LAYER REPORTEDLY REASSERTS SUPPLY-RISK PREMIUM

Per Reuters coverage carried in the data drop headlines, one piece reportedly framed reported US sanctions as reportedly targeting reported Iran's reported auto and reported rail sectors as the reported shipping-lane blockade reportedly chokes reported Hormuz traffic. Per Benzinga coverage carried in the data drop holdings news for GD, one piece reportedly framed President Trump as reportedly telling Time magazine he may reportedly increase reported Iran strikes after reported midterms if no deal is reached and reportedly stating reported oil movements through reported Hormuz reportedly set a record overnight. Per data drop, WTI (USO) reportedly closed Thursday at $150.02 (↑2.99%) and Brent (BNO) at $62.95 (↑4.76%) — a reported continuation of this week's reported crude bid per Wednesday's drop and Thursday's drop reportedly reasserting the reported physical-crude supply-risk premium against the reported Qatari-mediated diplomatic track. Per data drop, the reported FCI energy sleeve reportedly participated with CVX ↑1.42% at $207.10, OKE ↑2.22% at $87.16, CNX ↑1.12% at $31.52, and XLE ↑1.95% at $62.70 — the reported sector leader on the Thursday tape. Per Reuters coverage carried in the data drop, one piece reportedly framed reported crude as reportedly pulling back on reported mixed supply signals, framing an intraday reversal narrative into the Friday setup. For FCI positioning, the composition — a reported sanctions-escalation signal reportedly reading through the reported Iran-auto-and-rail sectors, a reported Trump interview reportedly signaling a reported post-midterm strike-escalation path, a reported Hormuz blockade reportedly reading through the reported physical-crude supply layer, and a reported energy-sector leadership on the Thursday tape — keeps CVX, OKE, CNX, LMT, and GD reading through the reported physical-crude signal, the reported sanctions perimeter, and the reported diplomatic gap into the Friday setup.

REPORTED YEMEN REPORTEDLY CARRIES OUT REPORTED 20 STRIKES ON HOUTHI TARGETS IN TAIZ PER REUTERS; REPORTED FLYDUBAI COCKPIT INCIDENT REPORTEDLY CLOUDS REGIONAL AIRLINE REVIVAL PER REUTERS; REPORTED BOEING ENGINEERS AND TECHNICAL WORKERS REPORTEDLY APPROVE A REPORTED NEW CONTRACT PER CNBC COVERAGE CARRIED IN DATA DROP

Per Reuters coverage carried in the data drop headlines, one piece reportedly framed Yemen as reportedly carrying out approximately 20 strikes on reported Houthi targets in reported Taiz province per a reported spokesperson, and per separate Reuters coverage carried in the drop, one piece reportedly framed the reported Flydubai cockpit incident as reportedly clouding the reported regional airline revival. Per CNBC coverage carried in the data drop headlines, one piece reportedly framed reported Boeing engineers and reported technical workers as reportedly approving a reported new contract reportedly avoiding a strike — a reported defense-industrial-base read-through against the reported FCI defense sleeve. Per data drop, LMT reportedly closed Thursday at $505.50 (↓0.74%) and GD reportedly closed at $332.72 (↑0.27%) into the reported sanctions-escalation signal, and per data drop holdings news, one SeekingAlpha piece reportedly framed Huntington Ingalls as reportedly able to accelerate reported yard output. For FCI positioning, the composition — a reported Yemen-Houthi conflict reportedly reading through the reported Red Sea shipping-lane channel, a reported Flydubai airline-revival overhang, a reported Boeing-contract settlement reportedly reading through the reported aerospace-labor channel, and a reported defense-industrial-base read reportedly framing the reported midterm-escalation signal — keeps LMT, GD, CVX, OKE, CNX, and NEE reading through the reported physical-crude signal, the reported defense narrative, and the reported cross-asset spillover into the Friday setup.

On Our Radar

1. Today at 8:30 AM ET — Reported September Employment Situation; Reported Nonfarm Payrolls Consensus Reportedly ~84,000 per Newsquawk Preview (Reported Bank of America at ~60K, Reported Bloomberg Median at ~90K); Reported Unemployment Rate Reportedly Projected to Hold at ~4.1% per Bloomberg; Reported Fed Funds Futures Reportedly Price ~72% Hold at October 27–28 FOMC per CNBC Coverage. Per Newsquawk and Bloomberg preview coverage of the reported September Employment Situation, reported consensus reads approximately 84,000 nonfarm payrolls for the reported month with reported Bank of America at a reported 60,000 estimate and reported Bloomberg median at a reported 90,000 estimate, and the reported unemployment rate is reportedly projected to hold near 4.1%. Per CNBC coverage of CME FedWatch, reported fed funds futures reportedly price approximately a 72% probability of a reported hold at the reported October 27–28 FOMC meeting, a reported shift from Wednesday's reported post-PCE pricing per CME FedWatch coverage carried in Wednesday's brief where a reported October hike reportedly dropped from approximately 73% to approximately 35%. For FCI positioning, the composition — a reported soft-payrolls expectation into a reported sticky-prices-paid ISM print, a reported Fed-path signal reportedly skewing toward hold, and a reported 10-year yield reportedly retreating from a reported 24-year intraday high — keeps CHD, CL, ABT, SYK, DGX, ADP, SPGI, and the reported FCI rate-sensitive sleeve reading through the reported Fed-path signal into the Friday setup.

2. Reported September ISM Manufacturing PMI Reportedly Prints 54.5 Thursday (Reportedly Slightly Below the Reported 54.9 Consensus) With Reported Prices-Paid Reportedly Jumping to 77.9 (Reportedly Approximately 5.9 Points Above the Reported 72 Consensus) per CNBC Coverage; Reported Mixed Signal Reportedly Reads Through the Reported Manufacturing-Expansion Narrative Against a Reported Sticky-Input-Cost Signal. Per CNBC coverage of the reported Thursday 10:00 AM ET release, the reported September ISM Manufacturing PMI reportedly printed approximately 54.5 (reportedly slightly below the reported 54.9 consensus) while the reported prices-paid subindex reportedly jumped approximately 6.8 points to 77.9 (reportedly well above the reported 72 consensus) — a reported mixed read where the reported headline reportedly held in expansion territory but reported input costs reportedly reasserted a reported stickiness signal. Per data drop, the reported FCI Dividend industrial sleeve reportedly participated in the reported Thursday rebound with CAT ↑1.92% at $826.35, FAST ↑1.40% at $50.23, PCAR ↑0.12% at $109.94, GD ↑0.27% at $332.72, and STLD ↑2.06% at $226.17. For FCI positioning — a reported ISM headline reportedly reading through the reported manufacturing-activity signal and a reported prices-paid print reportedly reading through the reported input-cost pressure — keeps CAT, PCAR, FAST, GD, STLD, and the reported FCI industrials sleeve reading through the reported manufacturing-cycle signal into the Friday setup.

3. Reported Accenture (ACN) Reportedly ↑ Approximately 18% Thursday on Reported Fiscal Q4 Revenue of ~$18.7B (Reportedly Above the Reported ~$18.3B FactSet Consensus and the Reported $17.8-$18.4B Company Guide) per BBN Times Coverage; Reported Nike (NKE) Reportedly Reports After the Thursday Close With Reported Q1 Revenue of ~$11.2B (Reportedly Below the Reported ~$11.3B Consensus) and Reported Full-Year EPS Guided to a Reported $1.15-$1.35 Range per Yahoo Finance Coverage. Per BBN Times and Benzinga coverage of the reported ACN release, reported Accenture shares reportedly surged approximately 18% on reported fiscal Q4 revenue of approximately $18.7 billion (reportedly above the reported $17.8-$18.4 billion company guide and reported approximately $18.3 billion FactSet consensus) and reported adjusted EPS of approximately $3.29 versus a reported approximately $3.21 estimate carried in the data drop. Per Yahoo Finance coverage of the reported Nike (NKE) fiscal Q1 2027 release Thursday after the close, reported Q1 revenue reportedly printed approximately $11.2 billion (reportedly down approximately 4% YoY and reportedly below the reported approximately $11.3 billion consensus) with reported diluted EPS of approximately $0.48 versus a reported approximately $0.44 estimate, and reported fiscal 2027 full-year adjusted EPS is reportedly guided to a reported $1.15-$1.35 range with reported revenue expected to decline at a reported high-single-digit rate — a reported post-close NKE share decline reportedly reading through the reported after-hours tape per Yahoo Finance coverage. For FCI positioning — a reported ACN beat reportedly reaffirming the reported enterprise-digital-services demand layer, and a reported NKE miss reportedly reading through the reported consumer-discretionary channel — keeps NOW, FTNT, KEYS, CRDO, and the reported FCI enterprise-software sleeve reading through the reported digital-services signal into the Friday setup.

4. Reported Credo Technology (CRDO) Reportedly ↑ 7.90% Thursday to $210.17 per Data Drop on Reported AI-Infrastructure, Reported Optical-DSP Hyperscaler Adoption, and Reported Index-Inclusion Mechanics per Yahoo Finance and TradingKey Coverage; Reported Lam Research (LRCX) Reportedly ↑ 3.53% to $340.10 and Reported TE Connectivity (TEL) Reportedly ↑ 3.16% to $217.76 per Data Drop. Per data drop, the reported FCI AI-infrastructure sleeve reportedly led Thursday with CRDO ↑ 7.90% at $210.17, LRCX ↑ 3.53% at $340.10, TEL ↑ 3.16% at $217.76, and KEYS ↑ 2.70% at $373.88. Per Yahoo Finance and TradingKey coverage of the reported CRDO tape, reported Credo shares reportedly climbed on a reported combination of reported AI demand, reported optical digital-signal-processor hyperscaler adoption, reported active-electrical-cable momentum, and reported recent global benchmark-index inclusion reportedly supporting reported mechanical institutional rebalancing. Per data drop holdings news, one Yahoo piece reportedly framed Credo as reportedly positioned to benefit as reported AI spending reportedly enters its reported next phase, and per separate data drop holdings news, one SeekingAlpha piece reportedly framed Lam Research as reportedly set up for a reported October Micron volatility spike. For FCI positioning — a reported chip-and-interconnect leadership reportedly reading through the reported AI-infrastructure signal, a reported LRCX reportedly reading through the reported semi-cap-equipment layer, and a reported TEL reportedly reading through the reported physical-connectivity channel — keeps CRDO, LRCX, TEL, KEYS, and the reported FCI physical-AI-infrastructure sleeve reading through the reported physical-world-matters signal into the Friday setup.

5. Reported Oil Reportedly Advances Sharply Thursday — WTI (USO) Reportedly ↑2.99% to $150.02 and Brent (BNO) Reportedly ↑4.76% to $62.95 per Data Drop; Reported New US Sanctions Reportedly Target Iran’s Auto and Rail Sectors per Reuters; Reported Trump Reportedly Signals Possible Post-Midterm Strike Escalation per Time Interview Carried in Data Drop.

Per data drop, WTI (USO) reportedly closed Thursday at $150.02 (↑2.99%) and Brent (BNO) at $62.95 (↑4.76%) — a reported sharp bid reportedly reasserting the reported physical-crude supply-risk premium. Per Reuters coverage carried in the data drop headlines, one piece reportedly framed reported US sanctions as reportedly targeting reported Iran’s reported auto and reported rail sectors as the reported shipping-lane blockade reportedly chokes reported Hormuz traffic, and per Benzinga coverage carried in the data drop holdings news for GD, one piece reportedly framed President Trump as reportedly telling Time magazine he may reportedly increase reported Iran strikes after reported midterms absent a reported deal. Per data drop, CVX reportedly closed Thursday at $207.10 (↑1.42%), OKE at $87.16 (↑2.22%), CNX at $31.52 (↑1.12%), and XLE at $62.70 (↑1.95%) — the reported sector leader on the Thursday tape. For FCI positioning — a reported sanctions-escalation signal, a reported midterm-strike signal, and a reported energy-sector leadership on the Thursday tape — keeps CVX, OKE, CNX, LMT, GD, and the reported FCI energy sleeve reading through the reported physical-crude signal into the Friday setup.

6. Reported CNN Stock Fear & Greed Reportedly Reads Approximately 28 (Fear) per Benzinga Coverage; Reported Drop Value at 72 (Greed) Is the Reported Crypto Fallback per CNN Stock Endpoint Failure; Reported Bitcoin (IBIT) Reportedly ↑1.31% Thursday to $47.96 and Reported Ethereum (ETHA) Reportedly ↑1.24% to $20.37 per Data Drop; Reported Bitcoin Live Reportedly Near Approximately $86,200 per CoinDesk Coverage.

Per Benzinga coverage of CNN Fear & Greed, the reported CNN Stock Market Fear & Greed Index reportedly reads approximately 28 (reportedly Fear) as of the reported Thursday close, and per data drop, the reported Fear & Greed value of 72 (Greed) reflects the reported crypto fallback after the reported CNN stock endpoint reportedly failed. Per data drop, IBIT reportedly closed Thursday at $47.96 (↑1.31%) and ETHA at $20.37 (↑1.24%) into the reported broader risk-on reversal, and per CoinDesk coverage of the reported overnight Friday tape, reported Bitcoin reportedly traded near approximately $86,200 (reportedly ↑1.5% over the reported 24 hours). Per data drop holdings news, one Yahoo piece reportedly framed reported Bitcoin-ETF inflow streaks as reportedly ending, and per separate data drop holdings news, one Yahoo piece reportedly framed reported bonds as reportedly battered against reported Bitcoin in the reported third quarter. For FCI positioning — a reported bifurcated sentiment tape, a reported IBIT-and-ETHA sleeve reading through the reported crypto signal, and a reported bitcoin-live quote reading through the reported digital-assets layer — keeps IBIT and ETHA reading through the reported crypto-ETF signal and the reported duration layer into the Friday setup.
